All's well that ends well thanks to installer Tom

When Halifax plumber Tom Spellman read about a robbery in his local paper, he decided to do what he could to help. Molly Taylor, an elderly widow, had been threatened in her own home and robbed of the money she had saved up to update her heating system before the winter.

Tom, of Spellman Plumbing and Heating Engineers, said: "When I heard about the ordeal this old lady had been subjected to, I thought I would supply and fit a new boiler for her, to prove that there are good people about.

"I was going to provide the boiler, but when the manager at my local PTS branch and the boiler manufacturer, Baxi, heard the story, they offered to supply it free of charge."

Manager of the Halifax branch of PTS, Mark Dowson, explained: "We thought that Tom Spellman made a very generous gesture, offering his time and all the products for nothing, and wanted to support him. And when our local Baxi representative, Nick Smith, heard the story, he was pleased to help too."

Baxi and PTS have supplied a Baxi Solo HE 18kW heat only boiler for Tom to install in Molly's home.

Molly Taylor said: "The generosity is overwhelming. It's not been a pleasant few days, but this is so kind I just don't know what to say."
